

Legal Leverage for the Home

This special free online home study course is for self-motivated, proactive U.S. private home decision makers ready, willing, and able to devote the time necessary towards dutifully studying and completely grasping the function of special contract-related home maintenance and improvement forms on the available website. These are only facsimiles and not intended for use as-is.

Home Study Recommendation Is For You To Know The Name, Use, and Impact Of The Form Which Is Featured Each Week

This personal home study experience is for self-empowered U.S. residents who are really interested in personally mastering the concept and utility of forms which are ideally used in special contract-related home projects as "insurance" against making regretful mistakes (some of which will otherwise prove very costly).

Reason for National Partiality

In this view, each legal/leveraged form is made available to you (free of charge) to thoroughly study assuming you are a legitimate U.S. private home decision maker. The reason for such partiality is that our laws, customs, and legal allowances are unique.

Why Legal Leverage?

Of course, upon viewing the title of this free home study course alone, one may wonder about why this is called “Legal Leverage for the Home” (?). My goodness! We are doing forms (for crying out loud!). Why not be more specific and call this “Legal Forms for the Home” (?).

Well, the major reason is that forms are nothing but “forms” without understanding why they are and why they must be used.

These leveraged forms can be tactfully used to guide the speed, direction, and consistency of all efforts which ensure that your project expectations will be matched or exceeded. This is not fundamentally about “forms.” Although there is emphasis on them, this is really more about operating your home project like the business it is. It is a “business operation.”

Each home project is literally a “business operation” within the total operations of the home. It is the business of maintaining and improving the comforts and conveniences of the home. Pursuit for doing whatever is necessary towards the comforts and conveniences of the home setting are the primary functional priorities. That, in itself, is a natural, normal social, business process.

Specifically For Contract-Related Home Projects

These are lessons on the use of specific forms specialized towards home maintenance and improvement using outside assistance. The crux for emphasizing “lessons” is that it is hoped that you train yourself to develop a greater sense for being engaged in a study of forms, their use, and their irreplaceable value especially when you are considering enlisting the assistance of contractors to contribute to maintaining and/or enhancing the comforts and conveniences of your home.

Therefore, these forms are presented here for you to thoroughly master as “weekly lessons”(one per week). It is guaranteed that when you do this, you will be all the more enlightened and encouraged to conscientiously (and like clockwork) resort to business protocol/business sense in the use of the appropriate forms, at the appropriate junctures, which literally can lead to you being a better “master” of the situation. Many cuts above most private home decision makers in the country!

More About Technique

These forms are especially presented to you to highlight the fact of how vital they are towards defining and refining business relations consistent with the results you expect. For sure, any business (of which operating the home is) which has no written forms or formality for employing the services of others is one which is the most vulnerable to being thrown off course and into chaos. The design is for you to get on course, stay on course, and to have the peace which always accompanies home projects successfully completed. This is more about strategy. This is more about technique. This is more about using “forms” to express yourself in such ways that at all times you will remain in COMPLETE control of all your home projects.

This control entails making better decisions in this realm which practically guarantee better results every time. These forms are only representative of your will, somebody else’s will, and/or of mutual wills for achieving mutual benefits and for accepting mutual accountability for what we do or do not do. Although it is said that forms will actually make or break you, the fact of the matter is that it is not so much as the forms as it is the action or inaction which they can and often do inspire or discourage.

Of course, with respect to language, we often use written means of communication to represent our thoughts, intents, and expectations. We use them to establish our priorities and we resort to action consistent with behavior which influences the best outcomes for our home projects. In the realm of home maintenance and improvement, with regard to hiring contractors, the timely use of the right forms and your willingness, readiness, and ability to present and to enforce them as needed, represents your full expression for how you choose to do business.

This being the case, you are strongly advised to dutifully study each form presented, each week, until you have a full grasp of its use. You must know what it means and what its use can mean to the success of your home projects.

Home is the best wonder of the world! You are the best wonder of your home! Please do not give place for anyone, at any time, to treat this best wonder of the world as though it is insignificant. Please do not allow that sort of behavior on your property since inadvertently your wishes are treated likewise.....
